LIMITLESS OPTIONS

In a time where certain pieces feel ubiquitous - with the same accessories or furniture appearing in countless homes - something that can be personalised is a thing to be treasured. With countless possibilities for assembly, the Triple mirror by T Colzani for Porada is composed of modular parts, allowing you to create a unique design. They can be purchased individually or combined to make different sized mirrors - almost like wall art - with Macassar ebony or a selection of Canaletta walnut finishes to pick from for the frame. ➤

ATTENTION TO DETAIL

The key to good design is in the details as much as the big picture - particularly for kitchens - and so we're delighted that Fir Italia has created Special Outfits. Four unique new finishings are designed to help make the process of choosing hardware for your kitchen or bathroom more exciting. An iridescent effect gives each piece varying colours depending on how the light is reflected. Choose from Ocean Dream, Blazing Sunset, Brown Caramel and Mocha Coffee to add layers of textural and colour variation to your scheme.

HIDDEN DEPTHS

The surprise reveal is the chic way to make a statement in interiors right now - from the flash of colour inside a cupboard to the contrasting lining of a curtain. It's what makes Eureka, one of the newest pieces for Lema by Steve Leung, so covetable. Completely rethinking the concept of the wardrobe, Leung has created an 'all-in-one' system with a range of modules and compartments that adapt to lots of different lifestyles. Shown here is the discreetly glamorous vanity hidden behind double doors.
